

seasons are a period of the year characterized by particular conditions of the weather or the temperature. Change is to transform or convert. For all of us at DHS these two words are synonymous. We have a new principle, Mr. Moran; a new Vice-Principal, Mr. Lopez; a new administrative assistant, Mrs. Rosales; and seven new teachers. There have been many renovations done to Diboll High School this year as well: the front office, the nurse's office, and repainted school walls. By the end of October, the construction on the new primary/elementary school will begin. Change is such a broad term. EVERYTHING CHANGES: people, faces, friends, jobs, ideas, trends, dreams, routines, scores, technology and time. EVERYTHING CHANGES. Change is an ongoing process and it occurs more often than you realize.

people change their hairstyles, hair color, friends, goals, views of life and their attitudes (for the most part). Changes can be made for the best or the worst. You never really know the outcome until the change has been made. As the years go by, people grow older and their appearances begin to change. There is always something wonderful to look forward to throughout each stage. People tend to have their life planned out - what college, what major, what career, how many children, type of house, etc... people don't consider the outcome if they make a bad choice. Their life doesn't turn out the way they planned or hoped.

scores change throughout every game. We watch the YouTube ratings increase every time someone presses the play button. We watch our friends keeping tabs on how many times they "got" someone else with their jokes. We keep up with everyone's "status" on Facebook. We watch who hangs out with whom and wonder where the "parties at". We watch to see who gets accepted to certain colleges. As we watch and keep up with all these things, something bigger is happening in our life's... time is ever changing. People tend to ignore the ticking sounds of the clock as days rush by.

as time goes by you'll have the choice to walk through every opened door. Good luck on all your possible journeys through your life. Seasons are a period of the year characterized by particular conditions of the weather or the temperature. Change is to transform or convert. For all of us at DHS, these two words are synonymous.

summer

Late nights and even later mornings, summer is the one time a year we all adore. Summer time is composed of months sun bathing, swimming, partying, pretty much anything you want to do. It's the time to learn something about yourself, grow up, make mistakes, and change. During the summer you realize who you are or who you want to be, you change your appearance and you prep for the next school year. But come August, it'll be time to come back to school; see your friends; learn; fall asleep in class; get ready for Friday night football games; act like a fool; and enjoy your life at Diboll High School.

Summer time has gone by, but it won't be your last!

Before entering the world of High School, the freshman take a trip to Angelina College to enjoy some time with their classmates. While there, they take some time to laugh and enjoy the time before school begins.

S. Malanders, C. Presnall, S. Meza, J. Sherman, K. French, A. Flores and T. Carrillo show off their dazzling spirit as they raise their axes during the school song.

Fish Camp is the beginning of the end of high school. Only four more years until one lifetime milestone is reached. But first, the dreaded freshman year. A chance to start over- the season of all things new. A time to refocus, a time to dream and a time set goals. New memories, new lessons, new teachers, new experiences, new friends, new classes and new responsibilities all make up this one monumental year.

Senior Photography Editor, T. DuBose, cannot stay awake due to the enormous demands of yearbook.

K. Bales sells a yearbook to M. Smith during lunch.

H. Spillers and N. Williams take a break from yearbook workshops while in Galveston.

For the most part, Yearbook is perceived to be a blow-off course do to the simple fact that students are allowed to leave the campus to sell ads. However, this course takes the most time and commitment of all courses. In essence, this course is about running a business. Daily adjustments to the yearbook budget must be made based on the income. Raising the money to pay for the yearbook to be published and printed is the sole responsibility of the yearbook staff. This is accomplished by selling ads and yearbooks. This year's staff, made up of 46 members, raised approximately $7000 in ad sales, $1500 in senior tributes and $5000 in yearbook sales. The 2010-2011 Lumberjack cost about $13,000. Success! Creating the yearbook is another huge task. But in the midst of all the work, the staff has fun. Especially, during deadline weeks—that is a true time of bonding.

LIFE SKILLS

Life Skills consist of students who do their regular school work along with applied daily skills. Both high school and middle school students work on cleaning, cooking, along with any other daily skills needed. This group of students makes DHS a fun place to be.

fall

Fall is the season of change. The temperature changes, the scores change, and the clothing changes. Fall is a time for football games and cheering on "our" boys. We all work hard, getting ready for the next sport or passing Mr. Wilbanks' test. This is the time for dressing up and trick-or-treating, and the time for giving thanks. It's time to take a week long break, eat all the yummy food, lie on the couch, and watch the "BIG GAME!" Even though fall is about all these things, it's also about enjoying life; always remember to enjoy your life.

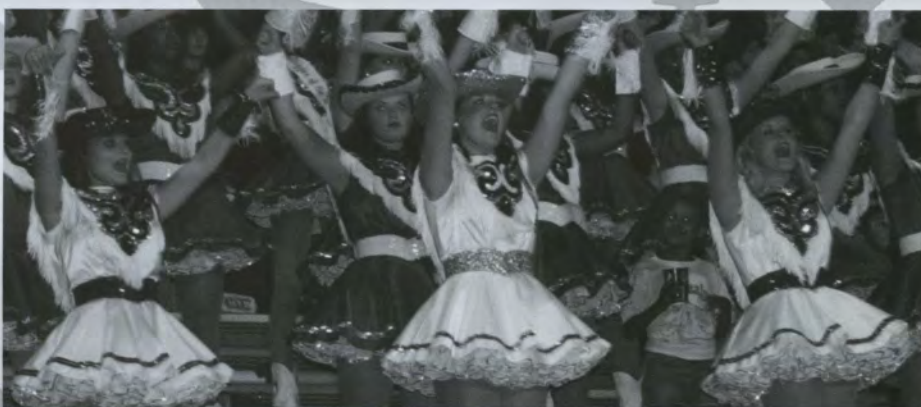

Fall is the season of change.

Of course, as with any team, they face their share of challenges, but they ultimately pull through. All of their hard work and effort pays off, in turn making this year a year to be proud of.

L. Drake, J. Rodgers-Bray and Q. Walls enjoy seeing each other at the Bonfire.

Each year, the traditional community wide pep rally or Bonfire, Jump-starts the Homecoming week. Anticipation builds as the pile of pallets grows larger and larger. Once the parade ends, the crowd sings the Fight song and eyes watch with awe as the pallets burn and light up the night sky. The Dazzlers, Band, Cheerleaders and Twirlers all perform for the football team and fans. Throughout the years not much has changed about the Bonfire. Just the students who attend and the crowd that cheers. As the night comes to an end, the band plays the school song as everyone holds up their ax and sings with their heart full of pride.

Some members of the football team have a little fun.

DIBOLL DAY 2010

Although Diboll Day 2010 is the 58th celebration of community pride in Diboll, things were a little different this year. Temple Inland decided to no longer sponsor the Diboll 2010 candidates, therefore requiring each candidate and her team to do much of the work alone. The students of Diboll High School participate and volunteer in numerous activities. The parade is a favorite among the young and the old. The Diboll Booster Club has raised $4 million for the community since 1953. Projects funded by Diboll Day include public swimming pools, the little league baseball complex, Old Orchard Park, Katherine Sage Day Care Center, The T.L.L. Memorial Library, and many other projects for youth and senior citizens.

Winter comes after fall, but before spring. This is the time of year everyone either loves or hates, because of the temperature. Living in Texas is different from living anywhere else. It can be 75 degrees one day and 25 the next. It snows, it's sunny, it's rainy, it's hot...a never ending seasonal cycle-just like life. Winter is the new beginning of a new year. You make resolutions that you know you're never going to follow through with, but you still make them because everyone else does. It's a start of a new year and a start of a new you. You're half way through the year. There's not much time left. So try to make it through the last couple of months until the season cycle roles back around to our favorite season...

Secrets

My deepest secret of all is that I have no secrets, all of my secrets from the most personal and emotional to me liking to pick my nose have been revealed to the world. It's not that I have nothing to hide, it's just that I have nothing to tell.

- T. Carrillo

I hear people talk about crazy people all the time and constantly use bipolar as a term almost synonymous to it. I have been diagnosed with bipolar disorder and now it makes me wonder if there's something really wrong with me.

-Anonymous

My deepest, darkest secret is that I can't stand being alone.

- J. Sherman

I like to dance in the rain.

-E. Villanueva

I always said that I wouldn't take care of an at-risk/highly sick person, because I was afraid of what people would say about me. But TRUTH is I took care of my BFF/ little sister. I had to bathe her, clean her, no matter what the circumstances were. Even though she was 17, everyone needs somebody who'll be there for them no matter what the situation is.

- J. Phoenix

I was never abused. I have a good life, with parents who both love me very much. My friends seem to like me, and I like them. I've even got a potential romantic interest in the works. But despite all this, I'm often struck with crippling despair. I don't know why I am, but it terrifies me.

-Anonymous

Everyone has something to share, whether it be significant or not. When you share something as private and as special as a secret, then it is a real sign of trust.

In a school environment, students should be able to trust their peers and teachers. Sadly, this is not often the case.

This page is a sign of change.

A change in the amount of trust that these students hold in each other and a change in the way students hold themselves.

For a student who is comfortable in their environment shall see no reason as to hold something like a secret.

Secrets only hurt the bearer.

When someone opens up and reveals their secret, not only do they share information but they share a part of themselves. A part that can never be hidden again.

The only thing better than opening up is acceptance.
Acceptance of a secret and acceptance in the person.

J. Rostro attempts to murder Callie Shivers during a stressful late night practice.

Normally, on any given Saturday you can find most high school students sleeping in, enjoying their lazy day off. But this wasn't the case for the the 2011 Diboll High School mock trial team, who were up at the crack of dawn on February the 12 to load the bus and head to the Tyler County Court House, in Tyler, Texas for their annual Mock Trial competition. Once arriving at the court house, each team is assigned a number and a court room and the first round begins. The luck of the draw puts the team up against their biggest rival first, but the team keeps their composure and finishes strong. After two more rounds, it was finally over. All of the hard work, time, and dedication the team invested finally paid off. Although they didn't make it to the final round, they did their best, and came home with fourth place medals hanging around their neck.

E. Solis "hard at work" keeping the time, and "using" the time cards.

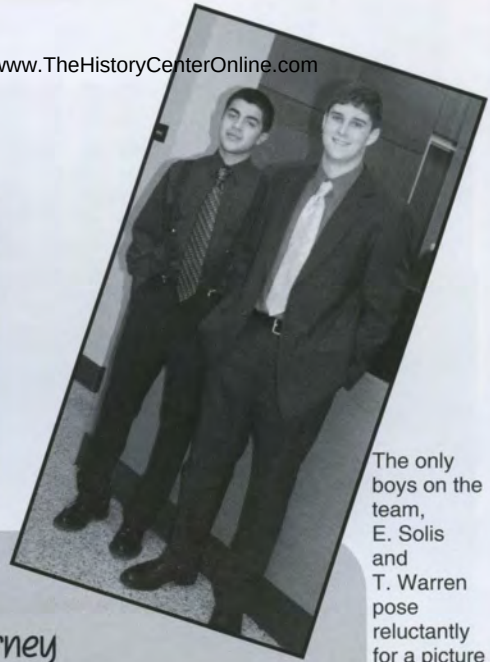

After taking group pictures, Callie Shivers, C. Presnall, S. Meza, H. Spillers, K. Haschke and J. Rostro take part in a serious discussion about the last round.

Callie Shivers looks over the questions she created for C. Presnall's character, Sitka Spruce.

K. Haschke, who played Linden Silver, studies intently while S. Mesa is on the stand.

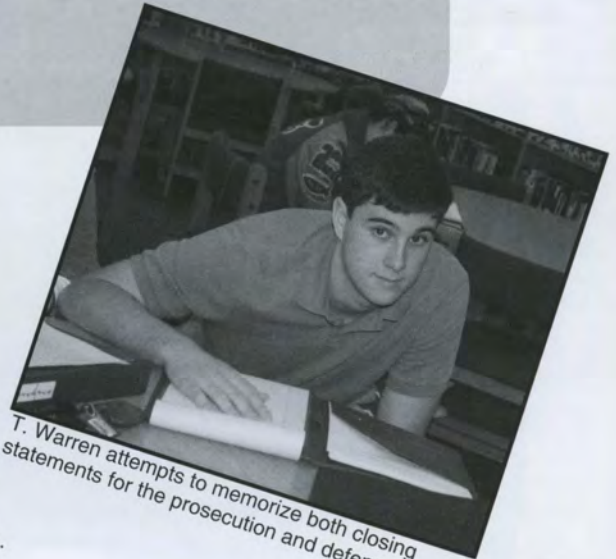

The only boys on the team, E. Solis and T. Warren pose reluctantly for a picture they didn't think was very necessary.

Another year has passed, but it's not your last!

Oh, how wonderful is spring? For some, Spring is the last season before the beloved Summer break, but for us seniors it means "Bye-Bye" Diboll High School and "Hello" college. We will all remember our senior skip days, dominating the juniors in Powder-Puff, and camping out before "THE BIG NIGHT". It's finally time for us seniors to fly on our own and succeed or fail. We are the CLASS OF 2011. We will be missed, and we will miss you. Underclassmen, your time will come! Keep your head up! Good luck on your years to come. Have fun and live your life through all seasons.

T.J. a young student photographer, chronicles the break-up of his family after his mother walks out. The demise of the family and its devastating effect are captured in dramatic and photographic flashbacks. T.J. tries to make sense out of all this, but no one is willing to talk or to listen: not his mother, his girlfriend, or teacher. Using his photographs, he reflects, "All Art is enlightening. But does it have to be so painful?"

Jenny,
The first time you were placed in my arms my heart filled with love and joy, excitement and pride. When you took your first steps and said your first word, started school, and all the firsts after that I felt enormous amount of love and pride along with fear that one day you would grow up and be ready to take that first step into adulthood. Now you are ready to take that firststep into adulthood, again my emotions are running so high words can't express how much I love you and how proud I am of the woman you've become. I know you will do great things and I know I have to let go of your hand and stay behind you so you can shine. Letting go is the hardest thing a mother can do just know, Jenny, I will always love you and will never be that far behind you.

everything changes...

as the year comes to an end, I'm sure you noticed some kind of change whether it was people, faces, friends, jobs, ideas, trends, dreams, routines, scores, technology, or time. Change is consistent. We always hear our parents telling us stories from their teenage years. Almost everything they mention is either coming back in style or improving. We went from the dinosaur phone, where we could only make and receive calls, to the iPhone, where we can text, call, e-mail - network, anything you want, there's an App for it!

we all remember what happened in the years 2010-2011: from fish camp to graduation day. We will all remember Diboll Day, the whack pep rallies, the football games (wins and losses), the youth fair and National Convention, and all the different sports and organizations. Seniors will remember the routines of filling out scholarship and college applications and the many college road trips. We will all miss walking to class with our friends, the jokes, the teachers, Ag Class, our friends, the pep rallies, homecoming, watching our favorite sports, etc... Everyday history is made, and something is always missed.

by this point in time, seniors should know what they want out of life. Most of us will move away and go to college and others will stay in Diboll. Whatever your future holds, know that it's bright. Underclassmen, especially juniors, take note of all the changes and sacrifices people have made or will make for you. Keep your head up and no matter what, always look forward. Things are constantly changing whether you like it or not, so don't dwell on the past! And remember EVERYTHING CHANGES...

Your Editor-in-Chief,

Callie Shivers
